F. Arden Burt to Take Up New Duties as Supervisor of Music at Bridgehampton, L. I., in September

F. Arden Burt, supervisor of music at Addison High School for the past three years has accepted a position as music supervisor for the coming scholastic year at Bridgehampton, Long Island, High School. Mr. and Mrs. Burt and their children, Arden, Jr., and Ann Marie, will leave about August 18 to take up their residence in the Long Island community, which is about ninety miles from New York City.

Mr. Burt has accomplished much toward the general extension of musical education since coming to Addison. The Addison High School Band was organized by him in March, 1933. The Steuben County music festival, now an established annual institution, came into being under his impetus in May of the same year. The first festival, held in Addison, was attended by over nine hundred students from the various schools of Steuben County.

Progress of the band following its organization was so rapid that its services were in constant demand for special occasions in other communities. During the season of 1933-34 the band played at the convention of the Western New York Firemen's Association at Wellsville, at the Fourth of July celebration at Dansville, the Independence Day celebration at Goodhue Lake, the Old Home Days at Cameron and Cameron Mills, the annual Steuben County Farmers' Field Day at the Judge Smith farm, also special occasions at Woodhull, Coudersport and other places. The band also took part in the second annual county music festival at Hornell.

This year the organization has been equally active, taking part in the laying of the corner stone for the new Corning Armory, the Memorial Day observances at Addison and Woodhull and at various other functions. In appearance and general musical efficiency, the band is asserted by many to be unexcelled in this region.

When Mr. Burt came to Addison, the high school orchestra consisted of about fifteen members. Since then it has been raised to a total of thirty-eight. During the season 1933-34 the orchestra played concerts at Richburg and Bolivar. This year, for the first time in the history of the school, an orchestra was prepared to play for the opening assembly on the first day of school. The orchestra was highly commended for its playing at the Hornell festival a year ago. At this year's festival, held in Corning, Mr. Burt personally had the distinction of leading the massed orchestras of the county, consisting of one hundred and fifty musicians from the schools in Bath, Wayland, Corning, Hornell, Addison, Jasper and other communities. The orchestra has also played for all assemblys at the local high school, the commencement exercises and other functions. This year, out of town engagements have included a concert at Richburg and the Corning festival at Corning, also a radio broadcast over Station

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

New Deal leaders at the capital faced trouble as they began action to attempt immediate legislation upon President Roosevelt's "share the wealth" program. As proposals for boosting inheritance and income taxes were advocated some Congressmen saw an opportunity for attaching a bonus rider to the bill while others advocated dropping some of the nuisance taxes such as the one cent gasoline levy. Fears of a tariff row over the move were anticipated when it became known Mr. Roosevelt desires his tax-the-wealth legislation attached to a resolution which involves import duties.

Cameron Mills Reader Objects to League Prices

The following letter received from a subscriber of the Addison Advertiser deals with the interesting subject of milk prices. We are glad to print it, and as a matter of fact the publishers of this paper are glad to print any letter concerning a timely subject—providing the writer signs the manuscript.

From time to time we withhold publishing letters from readers because they do not sign their names. If the writer requests it, we will omit the signature when the letter appears in the paper, but for our own protection it is necessary for the publishers to know from whom a communication is received. This is especially true of a controversial matter. The publishers may or may not agree with the ideas of the writer of a letter, but the fact a subject is of interest to many readers of the Advertiser is sufficient reason for printing it.

Editor's Note

Cameron Mills, N. Y.
June 25, 1935

Editor, Addiison Advertiser:—

The following prices paid milk producers in the Cameron Mills territory for milk testing 3.5% butterfat.—

Thurston Cheese Co.,	$1.30
Renken Dairy Co.,	1.665
Dairyman's League (plus certificates of indebtedness)	1.285

The patrons of the Cameron Mills plant would have got $1.605 for May milk testing 3.5% had the plant been operated independent of the League.

This means a loss of $.25 per cwt. for May milk, the loss for April was $.17 per cwt.

At the time they were asking the patrons of the Cameron Mills station to sign the League contract they, (the League) called it a "NEW DEAL" but, it has turned out to be a "RAW DEAL". If the milk board holds the price at $1.65 for milk going into class 2-A the loss will be greater for June.

Signed,
Kenneth Smith

Miss Groden Presents Murray Medal

This year for the first time, Miss Mary Groden, of Brooklyn, donor of Lawrence O. Murray Medal, was present in person and presented the medal to Eldon Seamans, winner of the award for the current year. In making the presentation, Miss Groden paid high tribute to the memory of the late Lawrence O. Murray, a one-time Addison boy, in whose memory the medal is awarded each year for proficiency in English.

"This medal is given in memory of a man who was born in this community, who attended the Addison school, and who in later life occupied high places in business and in the government of the nation", Miss Groden said in part. She then retraced his career beginning with his service as secretary and treasurer of the Trust Company of America, he was then called to Chicago to assist Charles Dawes, later vice-president of the United States, build up the Trust Company of Illinois. Subsequently he was called to Washington to become Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and still later became comptroller of the currency of the United States by appointment of President Theodore Roosevelt. Miss Groden recalled Ike Hoover's "Forty Years in the White House" in which the veteran White House attendant cited Garfield, Pinchot and Murray as being the presidents' closest intimates.

At the time of the World War, Miss Groden explained, Mr. Murray went to France in charge of the welfare fund administered by the Knights of Columbus. Upon his return, he told the speaker that he had accounted for every cent of the many millions of dollars, even to a two-cent stamp. "That is what you call a high class, conscientious gentleman" said Miss Groden. She quoted Theodore Roosevelt Jr. as saying, "A sweeter soul never lived than Mr. Murray".

"Mr. Murray always loved to return to Addison and he always hoped to come back to make his home here", said Miss Groden.

THE RUBBER-STAMP CONGRESS

If ever a Congress has made an unenviable record, it is the body of men now sitting in our halls of national fame. They have been elected to office for the avowed purpose of legislating for the good of the country, but actually they have become nothing but two-legged rubber stamps, docilely imprinting their Okays on bills predigested for them by a band of New Dealers who have taken over the operation of this government with results inglorious to themselves and disastrous to the nation.

A recent case in point arose over the Wagner labor bill which the Administration has finally decided it wants passed. Members of Congress by the score feel certain this measure will be declared unconstitutional when it gets up to the Supreme Court for test. Supporters of the Administration have repeatedly written opinions thiat this bill would be the biggest maker of mischief that has ever come up to create suits in our law courts and widen the gap between the viewpoints of industry and labor. It is just one more obnoxious affair to add to the long string of reasons Recovery can never come, while the present nightmare is in the saddle.

Knowing the Wagner bill is a dose of bad medicine for the country, does Congress dare use enough judgment to defeat it? No, of course not. The great Democratic majority is told by the Democratic President that what he wants done —must be done. His will must not be opposed, whether the members of Congress think he is right or wrong. It makes no difference that the country found many of the New Deal measures to be big blunders, long before the Supreme Court ruled NRA unconstitutional, Congress must keep right on rubber-stamping the bills upon which the White House has smiled. The innocuous members must not have any ideas of their own unless those ideas conform strictly with the school of thought issuing from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Eventually all things come to an end, and the end of this majority group now in Congress will be one of great discredit. It is one thing to try honestly to do a thing and make a mistake, but it is quite another thing to take a mistaken course of action—knowingly. Many members of Congress are doing that very thing. They are doing the bidding of the man who has controlled so much patronage, who now controls the greatest political lever in history—a fund of nearly five billion dollars. They are not acting on their own judgment, they are not serving their constituents as they have sworn to do; they are not truly legislators, and makers of laws.

When the records are all in, surely this will be called the "Rubber-Stamp Congress".

THE PARKING PROBLEM

The Addison Advertising Club took a commendable stand last week in resolving to petition the village board to mark parking lines along the sides of Main Street. This is not so big a job it requires long preparation, yet the village fathers have been slow at starting this needed improvement, with the result cars are parked at various angles and strung too far apart, or too close together.

A number of years ago after the spaces between the brick pavement and curbs were first covered with macadam, parking lines were painted. These facilitated parking for a couple of years, until the lines grew dim with wear at some points along the street. When local officials prepared to remark the lines the board members evidently decided they had not been properly placed and slanted in the first place, so a new charting scheme was carried out. As some of the old lines were still visible this led to a great deal of confusion, motorists being unable to tell which parking marks should be followed, the result being that all marks were soon disregarded.

It is to be hoped the board will now attend to marking the newly paved street to make parking as convenient as possible, and at the same time provide room for as many vehicles as can be ranged the length of the street. The marks should then be re-painted eash year.

Establishing a zone of limited parking along parts of Main Street should meet with the approval of most people who come to Addison to shop. When cars move into the most favorable parking spaces on the street early Saturday evening and hold the same spot until 10:00 P. M. or later, later comers are unable to get near certain stores to load up packages. Shortening the parking period should prove a real convenience to all shoppers, as cars could keep coming and going in and out of the limited zone, giving everyone an opportunity.

At the same time visitors to the village should be made aware there are plenty of unlimited parking areas within one block of Main Street. Drivers who desire to remain in the village all evening to attend the theatre or visit with neighbors, should not be burdened seriously by placing their cars on Valerio Parkway, Wombough or Colwell streets, on Saturdays.

The question of parking automobiles has become a great obstacle to shopping in the cities of the state. It need not become so critical in Addison if the parking problem is handled in a sensible way. The sensible way to solve this problem is to limit the time for leaving cars in the Main Street zone and providing unlimited parking time nearby.

In this way all visitors to Addison may shop with the greatest convenience.

ADDISON'S CHAMPIONS

Now the coach of Hornell High School has decided it would be a futile gesture to play out the game forfeited to Addison three weeks ago, the subject may be approached with a little less rancor. Mr. Hartman is said to have decided it would be better for inter-school feeling in future athletic encounters of Hornell and Addison, if the game were allowed to stand as concluded.

One can easily understand why the Hornell attitude on this game has changed since a protest was carried first to state officials and then to the county league head. During the interim of the forfeited game and last Friday when the Hornell coach announced a change of heart, his team had lost one game to C. F. A., while Addison had defeated that team and Painted Post High. So Hornell could not possibly tie the Knights, let alone capture the league title. With nothing to gain and everything to lose, Hornell's loud wail in protesting the game has sunk to an inaudible sigh.

Viewed from one angle Addison was taking a sporting attitude in consenting to play out this disputed game. A few years ago the local school entered a protest against another school over a game, the protest was allowed by the league officials and Addison won the play-off and incidentally the league baseball championship for the season. Hence Addison has reason to look upon the question of protesting disputed games, from a broad viewpoint. There are, however, two phases of the matter which do not exactly jibe with the ideas of sportsmanship, as looking at it from this end of the county.

The Hornell coach might have been justified, if he thought the grounds were too wet to play, in going on with the game under protest, or even in taking his players off the field. But instead of doing either he evidently instructed the Hornell boys to obstruct the progress of the game in every way possible. When infielders deliberately throw balls to the outfield after the umpire has called for play to be resumed, the intention of such players to delay the game is too apparent to be misconstrued. According to the rules of the game an umpire in chief has absolute command of the situation, and when he orders the players to "play ball" or calls "time out", his word is law on the diamond.

The president of Steuben County League should have taken this fact in consideration in passing upon the question of allowing or disallowing the Hornell protest of the game. Dennis O'Keefe, the umpire in chief at this game, should unquestionably have been called to any conference growing out of Hornell's protest. To neglect to get the umpire's story from his own lips was a gross error of judgment by the league head, and may easily result in a tendency to disregard the orders of officials conducting league athletic contests in the future.

That Hornell tried to get a game re-played after the school had been beaten 6 to 1, does not take anything away from the fact Coach Hewson's Knights performed like a real baseball nine in winning the league title with 8 victories against 2 defeats. It was a decisive victory, the two-game margin proving conclusively Addison has the best team. It is all the more enjoyed because Addison High is the smallest school in division A of the county league. In playing schools like Hornell, C. F. A. or Northside High, Addison is handicapped by the small student body from which to pick players. What he lacks in reserves the Addison coach must make up by intensive training of the material at hand.

Winning the league championship against odds, as they have, our hats are off to the Addison Knights.

GOVERNMENT BY BLUDGEON

The threat of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to call a nation-wide strike unless the demands of his group are strictly adhered to by Congress has done more than anything else possibly could to injure the cause of those for whom he pretends to speak. For in trying to bludgeon Congress and the country into line behind this legislative program, which includes the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, Green has alienated thousands upon thousands of persons who might be sympathetic to some of his programs.

The country was sick enough already of the pressure exerted at Washington by selfish blocs, such as the veterans' bloc, the Townsend pension bloc, the Coughlin bloc, and the share-our-wealth bloc. Each of these groups is intent on carrying out its own purposes, irrespective of the effect which the achievement might have on the country as a whole. Now comes the labor bloc with a threat to stop the wheels of industry throughout America—and thereby to sabotage economic recovery—unless it has its way.

Reform Ahead of Recovery

By MARK SULLIVAN

IN business and in politics there is intent effort to discover President Roosevelt's present intentions and motives. This results in much guessing, for in the nature of things no one can know surely what is in another man's mind. Nevertheless, the speculation continues, for, while the head of state has as much power as President Roosevelt, what goes on in his mind becomes sometimes of serious consequence to the country.

The facts are that Mr. Roosevelt, following his criticism of the Supreme Court decisions, has enlarged the number of measures which he says this session of Congress must enact, and has increased his insistence on them.

Preceding the court decisions, Democratic members of Congress felt that the President was willing to have the most drastic provision cut out of the public utility holding company bill. They felt that Mr. Roosevelt would permit the Wagner labor disputes bill and the Guffey coal bill to pass or not pass, according to the disposition of Congress, without pressure from the President. They felt the President was not insistent on the controversial part of the banking bill.

Now, much of that has been reversed. Now, the insistence of the President is put behind several drastic measures. When the utility holding company bill was before the Senate, that body, if left to itself, would have eliminated the most drastic provision. Washington gossip tells picturesque stories of the pressure put on Senators by the President, through representatives of his who have control of patronage. In the end, the Administration was able to keep the drastic provision in the bill only by a margin of one vote.

Here, then, is a change of attitude by the President. Naturally, there is speculation about the cause of Mr. Roosevelt's change, and his present insistence on the passage of a large program of measures containing provisions which can be called radical.

The speculation which assigns Mr. Roosevelt's present attitude to mere pique over the Supreme Court decision is too simple to be convincing. A more plausible assumption would be that Mr. Roosevelt is now aware that he cannot recover the support of conservative and middle-of-the-road voters in his party and in the country. According to this theory, Mr. Roosevelt's criticism following the Supreme Court decisions alienated the conservatives and moderates from him definitely and finally. Consequently, according to the theory, he has decided to get the radical voters and hold them to him.

All this is surmise, and surmise about motive, which is always difficult to guess. The surmise is so general that it can be said to be the consensus of judgment.

If the surmise is correct, it means, on Mr. Roosevelt's part, continuation of a policy which Mr. Walter Lippmann once described as "punitive and terroristic attacks on private business." Some of the bills which Mr. Roosevelt now insists upon are, in the forms in which Mr. Roosevelt insists upon them, just that—"punitive and terroristic attacks upon private business" without attempt to discriminate between evil and good.

Out of this condition arises the question: Can we have recovery under a policy of this kind?

On this point, also, there is speculation about Mr. Roosevelt's mental attitude. Does he really wish for recovery? It is a fact that he is now resuming, forcefully, the policy against which some of his most loyal adherents warned him as much as a year and a half ago—the policy of putting reform ahead of recovery. It seems tenable to infer that Mr. Roosevelt now proposes to give the country a drastic and complete course of reform, and let recovery take care of itself.

That is as far as it is likely Mr. Roosevelt's personal attitude goes. It is not possible to share the suspicions of those who assert that the President will hold back recovery for the sake of being able to say, some time in the future, with respect to the Supreme Court decisions: "I told you so." There is nothing in that. Business recovery is one of the conditions that would tend to help re-elect Mr. Roosevelt next year. It is plain Mr. Roosevelt will not sacrifice or postpone reform in order to bring recovery, but he may be glad of recovery, if it comes, as it seems likely to, in spite of his reforms.

As to some of the radicals in the Administration, however, the charge that they are willing to "sabotage" recovery is put in simple words by so close and acute an observer as Mr. David Lawrence: "Excessive 'regulation' is desired by some New Dealers so as to produce chaotic conditions that would call for a strong centralized government as presumably the only desperate alternative."

To those familiar with the temper of some of the extremists, the charge seems tenable. It is an axiom of the technique of revolution that one way to bring a new order of society is to cause the old one to be unworkable. The radicals understand this. Mr. Roosevelt has seemed to think that America could continue to be America but could at the same time become something different.

The fundamental fact is that recovery is under way through natural forces. The natural forces have been aided, since the Supreme Court decisions, by a new confidence on the part of business men. This confidence rests on the assumption that the court will invalidate some of the other drastic measures as they did N. R. A. Vaguely but confidently most of business thinks that much of the New Deal is over the dam, and that America will continue in its familiar form of society and government without material change.

Who's Who Among the Debaters

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN view of the fact that the Supreme Court said in the N. R. A. decision that it could not draw in advance the precise line between Federal and state power, it is not astonishing that comment about the decision is very confusing. It has, in fact, produced some of the strongest paradoxes imaginable.

Thus the President, who has spoken as eloquently as any one on the dangers of centralized power, found himself out on the end of a limb, having given the country the impression that he would like to override the states. The Republican party which descends from Washington and Hamilton through Lincoln to Theodore Roosevelt began to talk as if it would like to return to the articles of Confederation which preceded the Constitution. Mr. Hoover, who described the attempt of the Federal government to stop a man from drinking a glass of beer as a noble experiment; Mr. Hoover, who from October, 1929, to March, 1933, extended the Federal power over banks, insurance companies, railroads, farms and factories beyond anything ever known in time of peace, suddenly emerged as an apostle of the purest Jeffersonian doctrine. Mr. Borah delivered an eloquent speech in praise of the Constitution and then inserted an amendment into the utility bill which was properly denounced as unconstitutional. Mr. Lowden, after an admirable speech on the dangers of centralization, sponsored a declaration in regard to agriculture which, if it means anything, means that the agricultural problem is to be hafidled by the central government.

As one of those who do not feel they have the final and complete answer to the question, I have been trying in my mind to define the issue. I have not got very far. As a mere beginning I have been trying to classify the various points of view which seem to be represented in the debate. The result is crude and probably not very important, but here it is.

1. Those who believe that when the Supreme Court interprets the Constitution, it has no choice as to how it will interpret it. They would hold, for example, that the clause in the Constitution dealing with commerce is just as clearly controlling over the opinion of the Court as, let us say, the provision that the term of the President shall be four years.

2. Those who believe that in interpreting some sections of the Constitution, particularly that dealing with commerce, the Court has discretion and adapts the Constitution in the light not merely of precedent but of its views of public policy.

3. Those who hold that the Federal government has no power not expressly granted to it.

4. Those who hold that it has large reserve and implied powers.

These are the four main general attitudes as to how the Constitution should be interpreted. They have existed since the earliest days.

It is useful then to note certain conflicting beliefs about the kind of government we ought to have. The conflict has existed at all times in American history.

5. Those who believe that the social system is so national in character that it must be subject to uniform laws. There are progressives and there are conservatives who hold this view. At the moment the progressives desire national labor legislation because they believe that otherwise a state with high labor standards will meet destructive competition from states with low labor standards.

There is also a very strong conservative demand for national laws on many matters. For example, many bankers would like to see a uniform banking system in place of the forty-eight state laws and one Federal law under which banking is now conducted. Like the progressives interested in labor legislation, they argue that some states are lax and this makes for unwholesome competition. Though the electric power companies are for the moment in favor of "states rights," the railroads would probably regard it as a disaster if rate-making were turned over to the forty-eight states.

All those who think along these lines, be they progressives or conservatives, are particularly impressed with the idea that a uniform law is better for their purposes than forty-eight separate laws.

6. They are opposed by those who are convinced that unless government is kept decentralized it will become tyrannical, bureaucratic, and inefficient. This school believes that the country is too large, that its regional interests are too varied, to make too much uniformity desirable. They believe also that many vigorous local governments are the best training schools for politics, that the states are laboratories in which social experiments can safely be made, that the advantages of uniformity are greatly exaggerated, that progress made slowly by local consent is surer than progress imposed from Washington.

These two points of view do not rest on rigid and absolute principles. There is no sane nationalist who wants to abolish the states. There is no sane home ruler who does not recognize that some more centralization is necessary and inevitable. Nevertheless, the opposition is real. The nationalists are prejudiced in favor of centralization, the home rulers are prejudiced against it. On a concrete question, therefore, the nationalists have to make a strong case in order to convince the home rulers.

We may note next three conflicting social philosophies.

7. There are those who do not believe that government, national or state, should regulate business more than it is now regulated. They are only accidentally believers in states

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Not often since the founding of the Republic has the capital city been so stirred by turmoil as in the past few weeks since the Supreme Court called the nation back to the Constitution. The Administration leaders could not determine where they should turn next, and even after they got their lines partially reformed, Congress was not told what was coming next.

Thus far there is only one clean cut indication. Legislation which clearly falls within the restrictions defined by the court is not being pressed steadily ahead. This can only mean that a number of these measures will be laid before the Supreme Court. When it throws them out as unconstitutional, certain leaders hope to use this to kindle a fire leading to a constitutional amendment curtailing state powers. Actually there is no other way to interpret the determination to go forward with measures which every one but New Deal legal advisers know to be unconstitutional.

Much political concern was caused in the capital by a brief Associated Press item from San Pedro, Calif., disclosing that 60,000 tons of Argentina corn are enroute to this country. The British tram freighter Cycle arrived from Rosario with 4,000 tons for discharge at San Pedro and 2,500 tons for other Pacific Coast ports. The fact that huge imports of agricultural products are continuing was disturbing to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's control plan, while the fact that British ships were sharing in the harvest gave no comfort in other quarters.

A recent announcement from the Federal Department of Commerce showed that farm imports into this country for just three months ending with March were $89,000,000—22 per cent higher than the same period in 1934. Multiplied by four to give a year period, this would be $36,000,000 worth of farm products imported into this country, the highest in many years.

Chairman Eaton Continues Fight To Win Assembly To Republicans

Albany— Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton is continuing his barrage against the New Deal, scoring such telling blows in his addresses and statements as to excite the very definite interest of the National Republican Committee and winning plaudits from State Committeemen and many Republican Chairmen in the sixty-two counties in the state.

The emergence of the Republican State Chairman from an amiable "Disciple of Harmony" into the category of a forceful, hard-hitting campaigner has come as a surprise to some political observers who have forgotten Mr. Eaton's successful fight to nominate "Wild Bill" Donovan for Governor on the Republican ticket in 1932. However, political luminaries with long memories recall the terrific Eaton drive which resulted in Colonel Donovan's nomination and his vigorous efforts in behalf of the war-time commander of "The Fightin' 69th". Thus it is that those in the know are quietly sitting back watching the fireworks which will continue to grow in intensity between now and the November election.

High Spots

High spots in recent statements by Republican State Chairman Eaton include his characterization of President Roosevelt's edict to work relief directors from forty-eight States that "politics must be kept out of work relief" as "applesauce". His reference to the attempted ouster of Tri-borough Bridge Commissioner Robert Moses by Secretary Ickes, and the use of relief money in New Mexico and Michigan to influence elections as "cases in point;" his statement that "The New Deal symphony has deteriorated into a poorly-trained jazz band;" his description of James L. O'Neill, new acting NRA Administrator as "another lamb led to the Roosevelt slaughter," and his word portrait of the Democratic Party in the nation singing "Man the life boats" and "Frank stood on the burning deck." Rr. Eaton's pungent phrases, Albany newspapermen say, have nettled the Democrats in the Farley camp and his declaration that "Mr. Farley double-crossed Tammany Hall — which made him," is reported to have evoked a pious "Amen, Brother" from among the "braves" of the Seventeenth Street Wigwam in Manhattan.

Young Republican Convention

The convention of the Association of New York State Young Republican Clubs is now a matter of history, and the delegates have returned to their home to begin their organization work for another year. However, an item of political significance lingers on, and that has to do with the suggestion made to the convention by Republican State Chairman Eaton that the Young Republican organization of the State appoint a Conference Committee "for the purpose of conferring with me from time to time with a view to suggesting ideas, policies, principles and platform planks". Mr. Eaton went on to say:

"I pledge you here and now that your views and suggestions will be given respectful consideration and that your committee will be given full honor and credit for such ideas, suggestions and planks as you bring to my attention. Further, I pledge you that recommendations which are beneficial to the party will be promptly placed before the Executive Committee of the State Committee for action."

The offer of the State Chairman, it is generally conceded, will go far towards bringing about closer working cooperation between the State Committee and the Young Republican organization.

"Camp Meeting" Successful

The "Camp Meeting" of Republican members of the State Legislature, Congressmen and guests of both, held at Star Lake on June 22 and 23, was most successful and efforts will be made to make the function an annual affair.

G. O. P. Assembly Chances Brighten

Republican chances for sending additional Republican Assemblymen to Albany this Fall appear considerably brighter in New York City than they have for several years. Experts declare that in New York County the Tammany machine is in worse shape than it has been since the days of Grover Cleveland. This is due to Farley supporters dipping into the county picture, determined to punish Tammany leaders who, through their Assembly, men, opposed reapportionment at the last legislative session.

Primary fights, it is declared, appear inevitable in almost every district in Manhattan, with hungry and ambitious Farleyites ready to spring at the throats of veteran Tiger henchmen. On the other hand, Tammany's sons see red whenever they hear the name "Farley". This because "Big Jim" assured them patronage would be theirs in plural quantities if they would oust John F. Curry, former Roosevelt arch enemy and Lehman foe. The Sons of the Tiger "fell" for the bait and elected John J. Dooling leader, after which neither they nor Dooling received jobs for themselves or the "faithful". All of which augurs well for Republican Assembly candidates in Manhattan.

Stresses "Grass Roots" Parley

The importance of the Republican "grass roots" conference recently held at Springfield, Ill., is being stressed by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Vice-Chairman of the State Committee, in a series of addresses made to women's groups throughout the state. Mrs. Bacon attended the conference as an unofficial observer from New York State, and declares it "Marks the awakening of the American people against the incipient scrapping of the Constitution by the Roosevelt administration". Mrs. Bacon makes known she was "visiting Washington when the New Deal was born, and I shall be there again —at its wake—due after the election of 1936." Republican women from ten mid-western states attended the conference, Mrs. Bacon adds, and additional national conferences of Republican women are to be held in the near future.

State Faces 115 Million Debt

Assemblyman Irving M. Ives, Minority Leader of the Assembly, was quick to point to the debt of more than 115 million dollars which is confronting the State as of June 30th as "conclusive evidence of the Republican contention that Governor Lehman did not properly balance his budget in recent years nor in this year". Preliminary figures compiled by Governor Lehman's fiscal agents and State Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine revealed the huge deficit confronting the state and taxpayers of the state.

"The figures compiled", said Mr. Ives, "show that the state has been in 'the red' every month since October, 1932, and that the deficit is mounting to higher brackets with each passing day. This is the kind of mismanagement the Republican legislators in Albany opposed at every turn during the last legislative session. It is the kind of mismanagement that will return the Assembly to the Republican Party this Fall. Republican control of the Assembly represents financial and social insurance to the people of the State of New York."

Health Camp Appeals for Funds

The Steuben County Tuberculosis and Public Health Association, Inc., is waging a vigorous campaign thruout the county to raise funds to provide a health camp for eight weeks for supervised care for children who are underweight and undernourished and those who need health building to prevent costly delinquency.

The camp buildings at South Canisteo are in fine repair and are equipped to care for fifty children. The need for proper care and nourishment is greater now than at any time before in the history of the county. Many of the children are from homes "on relief". Word comes, however, that relief is inadequate. It fights off starvation, but in hundreds of cases it leaves children bitterly undernourished, thin and pale. These children need special care, special food and rest. Children have the right to travel the road of health and happiness.

The county health association has great faith in the friends of children. The cry for funds comes from many sources, such as Fresh Air Fund, Social Settlement Fund, Crippled Children, etc., all doing the same thing, "giving children a chance."

One thousand dollars is needed to carry on the work of the health association for the coming year. The people of the country are urged to respond liberally to assure the funds which will enable the organization to function properly during the coming twelve months.

Home Bureau Leaders Attend State Schools

During the month of June Home Bureau leaders from all parts of the state gather in Ithaca for training in the various subjects to be taught during the coming year. The schools are planned for county agents, assistant agents and local women who are studying to become county teachers, or leaders.

Mrs. Susie Landers of Bath has attended the course on clothing, preparing to teach the work on buying household textiles in Steuben county and other subjects in several other counties in the state.

This week Mrs. Landers and Mrs. Lois Mathewson, county agents, are attending a course in reconditioning of furniture, upholstering and making slip covers. Agents and leaders from six other counties are in attendance.

Tribune Sees Presidential Leadership "At Low Ebb"

Two points stand out conspicuously in the voting in the Senate Tuesday on the Wheeler bill, which calls for the dissolution of utility holding companies. One is the circumstance that the measure was driven through the upper house at the behest of the President in the face of the outspoken opposition of his own hand-picked group of business-men advisers, the so-called "Roper committee". The other, and more significant, is the circumstance that in spite of almost unprecedented pressure from the Administration, the so-called Dieterich amendment to the bill — an amendment which would have transformed it from a punitive measure to a regulatory measure—lost out by only one vote.

We have pointed out on more than one occasion that only by fighting for what it wants can any group make an impression upon the present Amendment. On the one hand, the Committee for the Nation and the silver crowd have wrung concession after concession by making their voice felt at Washington; by contrast, the one group that attempted to meet the Administration more than half way—the American Bankers' Association—was rewarded for its "co-operation" by the introduction of the star-chamber-prepared Eccles bill, which would hand control of the Reserve system over to the Administration, lock, stock and barrel. The fate of the Roper committee duplicates that of the A. B. A. When the United States Chamber of Commerce, at its annual convention, took issue with the President on more than half his "must" program of legislation, including the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, the President, it will be recalled, declared that he would not recognize the Chamber as the official spokesman for business in the United States, but would consult, instead, with the Roper committee of fifty-two business men. He would seem now to have "taken in" this latter group about as effectively as he did the bankers last year. He pigeonholed their report, opposing his intention to destroy the utility holding companies, and that report might never have seen the light of day had it not been for the New York Herald Tribune, which disclosed its contents two weeks ago. Not only did he ignore the report, but he took a personal hand in the Senate battle on Tuesday to see that the central punitive feature was retained in the Wheeler bill.

As to the vote on the Dieterich amendment, the Administration can find scant comfort in that. Consider the circumstances under which it was taken. The sponsor of the utility bill, Senator Wheeler, has carried on a vigorous nation-wide radio campaign on its behalf for weeks. Meanwhile, through the Federal Trade Commission, the Administration has been laying the foundation in the newspapers for passage of the measure. More than 250 news releases have emanated from the commission bearing on the "abuses" of the utility companies as revealed in its investigations of the utility industry, and many of these have been synchronized with the hearings on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Yet, in spite of having laid this foundation, it required the most frantic and desperate efforts of the Administration forces to carry the vote against the Dieterich amendment by a single vote. Realizing in what hot water they were, sponsors of the bill decided at the last minute to read a personal memorandum written by the President to Senator Wheeler urging its enactment. Even this might not have availed had pressure not been available from another direction. Says one report of the voting:

"The last-minute check-up by the managers of the bill found them in considerable doubt over whether the amendment would be defeated, and more than a little pressure was brought by Democratic patronage officials from down-town during the ten minutes before the vote was taken. In that time, it is understood, four votes were swung against the amendment which even the bill's sponsors had anticipated would vote for the amendment . . . .

"Emil Hurja, patronage distributor for Postmaster General Farley, was seen dashing here and there just before the vote was taken. It is an open secret that the Administration's control over $4,880,000,000 was the deciding factor when the final vote was taken on the amendment."

When the President not only is forced to enter the lists in person to prevent by a single vote the defeat of his favorite legislative measure, but has to bring to bear the full political weight of the $4,880,000,000 granted him for unemployment relief, it can only be said that his leadership is at low ebb, indeed.

Judge Wheeler Starts Campaign For Second Term as Surrogate

Surrogate John C. Wheeler is preparing the list of members of the committee on vacancies preparatory to the circulation of petitions designating him again as a candidate for the Republican nomination for surrogate of Steuben County in the Primary election to be held September 17.

The first day for the signing of petitions is July 2, and the petitions must be filed by August 20.

Judge Wheeler is completing this year his first term as surrogate upon which office he entered January 1, 1930. His term has been an unusually successful one.

The record which he made as surrogate has proven that he is a careful student of the law, for although many involved cases, dealing with complicated legal questions, have had to be decided by him, his rulings and opinions have never been reversed by either of the higher courts; and in some instances the Appellate Division has merely confirmed upon his opinion.

Among the involved and unusual cases on which he has ruled as surrogate have been the Glenn H. Curtiss case in which had to be determined whether the great aviator and plane manufacturer was a resident of the State of New York or of Florida; the Harriett Shattuck Coughlin will case; the question of whether a World War veteran's unwitnessed letter written on a battlefield in France was a valid will; the Georgette Stamp will case involving a contract made by an 80-year-old woman for her care and the deeding of her property and many others.

A large amount of work has gone through the surrogate's court during the nearly five and a half years that Judge Wheeler has held that post. The number of estates, including guardianships, that have passed through the office is 2954, in which there have been 8862 separate proceedings. There have been 76 litigated or contested issues, involving a trial, and in each case Judge Wheeler has written and filed an opinion. Only 15 of these contested cases have been appealed to higher courts, and evidence that Judge Wheeler is considered by the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals to know the law is easily found in the fact that there has been no reversal of his opinions by a higher court.

John C. Wheeler was born Sept. 26, 1886 at Cameron, son of the late John D. and Adell (Santee) Wheeler. His mother now lives in Hornell.

After being graduated from the Haverling High School at Bath and later from St. John's Military Academy at Manlius, Judge Wheeler entered Cornell University. Receiving his degree from the law school in 1909, he came to Corning and after five years of practice was elected acting city judge.

While virtually all economists foresee a further pickup in business during the Fall, there is almost certain to be some decline during the summer. The hope is that the slump will be less than usual during the hot months. The ringing declaration of business men that they intended to maintain the highest wages possible, despite the elimination of codes, has done much to curb any pessimism that arose in the wake of the Supreme Court's killing of NIRA. Fear has been expressed that wages might suddenly slump.

F. Arden Burt to Take Up New Duties

WESG at Elmira. The orchestra also played for the recent dinner given to its correspondents at the American House by the Southern Tier News, Inc., and was highly commended for its work.

During the first two years, in order to have a mixed chorus it was necessary to include students from the seventh and eighth grades. The chorus at that time numbered about thirty-five. It has since been increased to about fifty-five and the entire personnel is now made up of high school students. Three years ago, instruction at the school was limited to rudiments. It has been built up to where it now includes Rudiments, Harmony I, Harmony II and Music History. Last year, Dean Cole received the first regents diploma in music ever issued to a student graduating from Addison High School.

Mr. Burt came to Addison after a solid groundwork of training and experience in the musical field. He was graduated from Machias High School in 1921 and attended Houghton College for the next two years. He then studied for two years at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester and during the ensuing five years was engaged as a theatre organist, including an extended period at Miami, Fla., where he was located at the time of the hurricane which all but destroyed the city.

Forseeing that the introduction of talking pictures would very largely do away with theatre organ accompaniment, Mr. Burt decided to make use of his knowledge and experience in the field of public school music. He thereupon entered Fredonia Normal, which is noted for the excellence of its musical department. He graduated from Fredonia in 1932 and took up his duties in Addison in the fall of that year. For the past two summers he has been studying at Ithaca College and at the completion of his third summer session this August, he will receive the degree of Bachelor of Music Science.

Mr. Burt will be succeeded here by Joseph Grayback, who comes to Addison from Boonville. Mr. Grayback was a friend of Mr. Burt at Fredonia Normal and completed his course there in 1933.

Another departure from the Addison High School faculty this year will be Mrs. Agnes Sly, who has taught grades 7-a and 8-a. Mrs. Sly will teach next year at Cameron mills. She will be succeeded here by Miss Helen Smith, who is being advanced from her former post as teacher of the fourth grade. Miss Velma Wood, a newcomer to the staff, will succeed Miss Smith as fourth grade instructor.

Woodhull Minister Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. E. Trevor Cooke, who has resigned his position as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Woodhull, will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday, June 30.

Mr. Cooke is a progressive, forward looking man and during the four and a half years he has been with this church its membership has increased materially. His work among the young people has been especially beneficial and through his efforts a Christian Endeavor society was organized, which has been and is active in church work and a force of good in the community.

The Rev. Cooke is a well-read man. His sermons are exceptionally well done and invariably helpful. His ability along this line will be hard to equal. During his stay here he has been most faithful to his services, having missed but one Sunday, exclusive of the vacation periods, during the four and a half years.

Mrs. Cooke is particularly beloved by the people, being a talented woman specially gifted as a teacher.

Thirty-Five Graduates Receive Diplomas as Annual Commencement Exercises at Addison High School

to Robert W. Hallett, the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold said in part. "This young man while in Addison High School, has played the game. He has played it with all his might, he has played it in a manly way. He is a credit to the school".

Salutatory Address

In the salutatory address, Miss Esther Thomson emphasized the significance of the commencement falling on the 300th anniversary of secondary education in the United States. She then traced the development of the high school which she termed the most important social institution in American life, from the Boston Latin School to the present highly complex organization.

"Today we have a school which fills the known and probable needs of American youth", she said. "It develops social unity, it directs the interests of the students. Its main features are a guiding faculty, an enriched course of study, excellent instruction materials and cooperative community relationships.

"It tries to discover the ability of a student and to aid him in choosing his career. The school tries to help the student to study without prompting and to keep him in school until he is ready to shoulder adult responsibilities."

"The public high school is a natural descendant of both the early Latin school and the Academy since it was established under state control with a curriculum designed to meet the needs of an expanding Republic. It is an institution of which only America can boast.

Perfect Attendance Prizes"

Prizes for perfect attendance were awarded by Supervising Principal Robert A. Willson, as follows: for four years, to Genevieve Robbins and Esther Thomson; for three years, to Jean Manson and Harold Widger; for two years, to Curtis Aldrich, Lawrence Crane, Eleanor Hogue, Philip Hurd, Helen Kneaskern, Madeline Short; for one year, Arlene Costley, Viola Crane, Helen Crawford, Ella Saxton, Ernest Shelanskey, Evelyn Sherwood, Louise Watkins, Harold Wheaton. These prizes are awarded annually by the Board of Education.

Valedictory Address

In the valedictory address, Miss Eleanor Hogue, asserted that the questioning and thinking students of today are but natural and thinking descendants of questioning forefathers. She said:

"Friends of Addison High School and Fellow Classmen, although the high schools have changed radically in the past 300 years, as far as the student is concerned, he is the same eager, questioning individual he was when he read the "horn book." The only difference is the number of things the youth of today has to deal with far outnumbers the tools of yesterday. So rapidly have material things accumulated that people find themselves out of breath trying to catch up or lagging way behind. Although, like the rest of the world, we have not been able to solve any of these problems, we would like you to look at them with us, and, if you please, to advise those of us who come to you tomorrow with our inquiries about the things that are also puzzling you.

"As Mr. Nettleton said, "Robert Louis Stevenson, intending to delight a child, perhaps penned a profound treatise on economics when he wrote:

'The world is so full of a number of things
I'm sure we should all be as happy
as kings.'

"We of 1935 understand this to mean that there are plenty of good things in the world for us to enjoy a really full life if we only have the sense and kindliness to learn how to use and to share them. If we should consider security as simple as it probably is, might we not find that it does not lie merely in wealth—the wealth that is often mistaken for money? Editorial comment suggests that there is a wide spread conviction that the greatest force for security is enlightened thinking because this tends toward intelligent and common adjustment which is essential to equilibrium in a changing world. We are trying to decide whether social security is an equalizing of wealth and enterprise to a mere droning existence or whether it is a sharing of the rich and the spread of social justice and laying a foundation upon which continued pioneering in a world full of riches may build a super-structure of ever richer living.

"Some of the young people feel that we have inherited a sorry world and try to blame the preceding generation for it. Some of us are like our fathers in either not thinking at all or in thinking what the oldest member of the family thinks we ought to think. We must admit though that the vast majority of thinking students are by no means violently revolutionary, but are ill at ease with their present conditions. We cannot understand the modern statesmanship that outlaws war and at the same time increases its army and navy. So long as people are in need of the essentials of life, the theory that overproduction is the cause of our distress seems ludicrous. In planning for a richer life for all, we ask ourselves do we want to destroy war or shall we let war destroy us? Are we for nationalism or internationalism? Has the repeal of prohibition been a success? What shall we do with our leisure time? Does the democratic form of government best suit our needs? Ought we not to socialize medicine? Do we need the church? What is the good of education? Do we want to fit into the world or should we change the world to fit us?

"There is no doubt that the student of today is questioning, arguing and wondering, but isn't this entirely healthy? We have been libeled, maladjusted or neurotic because we are trying to find answers that will satisfy us.

"Are not the questioning graduates of the twentieth century the rightful descendants of those questioning forefathers who remade the Western World? Insofar as we try to think upon these modern problems we find ourselves too wise for the thoughts of yesterday and not wise enough for the problems of tomorrow. And with thousands of other high school graduates, we, the Class of '35 of Addison High School, await eagerly for a leader with vision and courage. To such a one only shall we surrender all the allegiance and the enthusiasm of our youth."

The nation is thoroughly pockmarked by labor trouble and strikes which extend from the New England seaboard to Nebraska, Texas and California. Textile strikes are bothering Massachusetts, seamen are striking in Rhode Island, Cleveland bakers have walked out forcing the closing of several plants, while sawmill workers and timber men continue their strike on the west coast.

Charles Lindbergh has turned his keen engineering mind upon the problems of medical science, helping to accomplish a new medical triumph. The flying colonel has been collaborating with Dr. Alexis Carrel in the Rockefeller institute and together they have perfected a mechanical heart which can keep organs alive in a glass cage. It is believed this device will open new fields of discovery by assisting medical men in their study of the action of body organs.

Announcing he will go "as far to the left" as Roosevelt, Senator Long has hopped on the President's new hobby for "sharing the wealth". The Kingfish, for some time has been advocating this great vote-gaining theory. Who's Who Among the Debaters lights. If the states exercised their rights they would be just as earnestly opposed. They are really believers in laissez-faire.

8. Those who believe that much more regulation of the economy is necessary and desirable. Temporarily they are nationalists, but if Congress were conservative, they would turn to the states. The essential thing in their view is the idea that in order to regulate the economy government must move in the direction of wage-fixing and price-fixing. They are moving toward a state capitalism which would eventually be indistinguishable from state socialism. Their program would require a radical change in the Constitution.

9. Those who believe that laissez-faire and state socialism are both dangerous and impracticable. They believe that during the depression it has been demonstrated all over the world that by means of a coherent monetary, budgetary and tariff policy, the economic system can be kept in a working balance without resort to the regimentation of private enterprise. They believe that without such a policy private capitalism will break down and that the regimentation and the socialism which supplant it will then break down too. Their view is exemplified by the policy of countries like Great Britain, Sweden, Australia, Belgium. It is part of the policy of the New Deal, unhappily confused and neutralized by the policy of regimentation. Personally, it seems to me the most promising. It requires no change in the Constitution. The necessary powers have existed in the Constitution from the very beginning.

There are two other points of view which, though not inherently important, are important politically.

10. There are those who believe that centralization is proper if the centralized power is in Republican hands.

11. There are those who believe it is proper if the power is in Democratic hands.

In 1932, for example, Mr. Roosevelt was shocked by Mr. Hoover's immense deficit expenditures. In 1935 Mr. Hoover is shocked by Mr. Roosevelt's immense deficit expenditures.

In actual life these eleven points of view may be found in many different combinations. That is what makes the current debate so confusing.

Value of Ideals is Stressed By Rev. Webb in Baccalaureate Sermon To Graduating Class

Front page of daily newspaper has been great American textbook, says speaker at M. E. Church—Arraigns munition makers, profiteers, brewers, bankers—In world of reality colored man is still a slave, he avers—"A more perfect union", projected in Constitution, is held unrealized.

"Not Good If Detached" how often have we seen this printed on railroad tickets, coupons, on your car license and registration, Do Not Detach— However I am not to speak on that sort of thing..... Recently a man was being criticized for something he had said. His critic evidently taking just an isolated sentence here and there (as some do with the Bible) and got an entirely different meaning from this complete speech. The man being taken to task wrote back.— "Not Good If Detached"

Baccalaureate Speaker

REV. RALPH WEBB

Here are some other things for us to think about that are "Not Good If Detached"

Education and Ideals

"It is a great peril to have clever minds without tying then up to ideals -- Just a few weeks ago we had this tragic illustration from Massachusetts; where Irving and Murton Millen and Abe Faber (Faber I understand was a brilliant student, a graduate from Mass. Institute of Technology) but all lacking in ideals. In their desire to get rich, the personality and rights of others were pushed aside—they destroyed those who stood in their selfish, arrogant way—They paid for this lack of ideals.

There is a danger that we may become unbalanced — drunk with sheer knowledge, knowledge that is dangerous for its lack of character. We believe that knowledge is power but what power? There is a danger that our civilization will collapse as other civilizations have done. We may achieve in the material field of endeavors only to be backward in our social wisdom. It is still true "Where there is no vision the people perish" yes, where there is no vision there is no real growth.

The mere possession of knowledge will not produce in some men that vitality—that something; by which the world will be helped. The keenest minds, with a wealth and background of knowledge have been laboring at Washington and across the continent, to put men to work — and money in circulation, but how far have they suceeded? Knowledge is something we all must seek and strive for but apart from ideals what of it? —

The program for recovery has been earnestly sought and planned for in certain quarters—but its failure may perhaps be best explained by lack of idealism. We had knowledge, facts, but no ideals for the common good—our education was a selfish thing not a thing of service. Munition makers, millionaires, profiteers, brewers, bankers, big business, stockholders—these lacking in idealism had knowledge, college degrees. Racketeers, kidnappers, educated—yes! after a fashion, but lacking in idealism! The Great Public has hindered the True Recovery needed in America—The Great American Text Book has been the front page of our daily newspapers—the scandal sheets—the propaganda of profiteering politions. The criticism of any deal that would take away from individual profit and interests for the betterment of the majority.

A great educator a decade ago wrote:

"What is the cause of crime?" - and answered:

"The failure of society to teach virtue."

How long will the crime wave last? - and again answered:

"The crime wave will last until society builds a system of moral and religious schools to match the public schools of our land."

This was written about 1925 — ten years ago. At that time it was estimated that the cost for crime was $85 for every inhabitant. The total cost of crime was then set at 10 billion dollars per year. What is it now?

Do not go away from here and say that Mr. Webb said that the courses in Public School present nothing of the ideals, or only opportunities for the accumulation of factual knowledge and aids to the memory. I know that ideals of service, sacrifice love of country and opportunity for character development are presented through the medium of history, biography and literature study. That the lives of Washington, Lincoln, Horase Mann and Clara Barton have value for idealism. That in all probility ideals are as ably presented in the secular schools of our land as in any place. Yes, I agree, but to you graduates let me say the ideal condition and situation is often presented in connection with some highminded patriotic citizen of the past. The courage and zeal of the early pioneers—the great values of our puritan fathers in the founding of this nation of ours—the exploits of Lindbergh and Byrd—all of this and then some more are worthwhile. But out in the world of reality there is all too little imitation of this idealism. Yes, there is all too little of this idealism out in the world—in the market place — the house of business, industries, the homes and in the places of government.

I know that Abraham Lincoln signed a document to free the slaves and to abolish slavery. But out in the world of reality the colored people are still slaves.!

In the preamble to the Constitution of the U. S. we must realize that the ideal is presented but not yet a reality. We may go and form a "More Perfect Union"—not yet perfect. All the while some narrow northern patriots oppose the erection of the statue to Robert E. Lee in the Arlington Memorial Cemetery, as did the Women's Relief Corp. of Mass., recently. We will find the ideal "A more perfect union" yet to work for. Education, yes, but along narrow lines.

"Establish Justice"—Is justice being established? We hope so. We are builders of fortunes. Millions for a few. Misery for the many. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts." In this way will the Kingdom of God and the Redemption of man be ushered in.

The increase of gambling, drinking and vice of all sorts is not a very encouraging reception for you on your graduating. But it does reveal to you I am sure that the world is not yet made. Industry-shop-school or college may be closed to you next year but if idealism is in your make up you can go to work on a community, a nation, a world confused, and in need of leadership in a new idealism.

The dust storms of the west — the overswelling of rivers—floods and disaster from fire cannot cause so much havoc to a nation as when that nation with all its education and all of its religious performances is low in idealism.

From education for vocational and cultural training we must not detach ideals—it is high time that we attach more—mankind must climb—Democracy is not yet a reality in America. What an ideal of peace do we hold but it is far from realized. Disease is still ravaging humanity — international goodwill and cooperation are still tobe wooed A decent standard of living remains to be worked out. Liberty and the pursuit of happiness remains a pursuit for multitudes.

"Not Good If Detached"

Patriotism and Internationalism

Patriotism and militarism are not synonomous-please omphasize that. Norman Boardman in his Mythology of Americanism, says there are at least three myths to be uprooted:

First: - "The idea that we in America are essentially different from other people.

Second:-"The idea that we are a peace loving people as against the rest of the world being followers of Mars.

Third:-The obsession that thisi is a land of equality quite different from any other country and he adds that Patriotism still seems to require that a nation regard itself as God's chosen people. The fact that all nations so regard themselves ought to be sufficient evidence for keeping God out of the picture."

The schools of the world are turning out many thousands of people versed and practiced in the varied fields of endeavor. The knowledge of any one man is but a part, a fraction. Now we know in part, Paul urged. If the knowledge we have is only the building of larger cities and skyscrapers, faster trains and cars, speedier and more luxurious airplanes, costlier and larger ships, deadlier and more secretive implements of war, if we neglect the building of a man, what of it all?

"We are blind until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making if
It does not make a man—
Why build these cities glorious
If the man unbuilded goes?
In vain we build the work, unless
The builder also grows."

Rite of Confirmation Conferred In Addison By Bishop Ferris

Thirteen in class at Church of Redeemer — Solo by Charles Weatherby—Bishop charges candidates to "hold steadfast with faith" — Reception in guild hall follows—Miss Darrin, Mrs. Clark, pour

The sacrament of confirmation was conferred upon a class of thirteen candidates Sunday afternoon, at the Church of the Redeemer by the Right Reverend David Lincoln Ferris, D. D., Bishop of Rochester. Those in the class were: Shirley Ann Johnson, Beatrice Ruth Johnson, Frances Curtis, Dorothy Alberta VanCise, Esther Elizabeth Whitmore, Harold William Lewis, Robert Junior Johnson, Robert Johnson, Edwin VanCise, Donald Joseph VanCise, Edward Minckler Auringer, John Robert Smith and George Carl Kingsley.

The ceremony opened with a solemn procession led by David Stiker as crucifer, followed by Gilbert Brown as flag bearer, the choir, candidates for confirmation, the Rev. Thomas A. Whitey, priest of the parish, and the Bishop. The procession marched up the aisle to the singing of the hymn "Rejoice, ye Pure in Heart". The service then started with the opening sentences, The Lord's Prayer, the Lesson, Nunc Domittis, creed, collects for confirmation and collects for the day.

Following a solo by Charles Weatherby, the confirmation candidates proceeded to the communion rail and stood while they were presented to the Bishop by the Rev. Father Withey. They were then catechized by the Bishop, who offered a prayer and the sacrament was then conferred individually. After the actual confirmation, prayers were said and the Bishop gave his blessing followed by a short talk in which he asked that they always keep with them the motto "Hold Steadfast With The Faith".

The service continued with announcements, sermon, offertory and concluding prayers. The entire congregation knelt while they sang the hymn, "Now The Day is Over". The Bishop then blessed the congregation.

The organ was played by Miss Katharine Darrin. Members of the choir were: Charles Weatherby, Harry Fritts, Mrs. Aletha Laffkas, Miss Norma Closson, Miiss Betty Gilhooley, Harold Lewis, Janet Taylor, Onalee Hunt, Mary Whitmore, Martha Laffkas, Helen Auringer and Geraldine Pepper. Four Knights Rate Places on County All-Star Nine

Lefty Flynn Blanks Corning Glassmen To Give Addison Team 1-0 Victory Over Champs

High school southpaw hurls superlative ball, ably supported by mates, and long losing streak is broken—Maurice Robbins in stellar role back of plate and clouts single in first inning to send in only run of game — Hewson and C. Hickey bag nineteen chances on either side of second without an error.

Bolstered by the addition of several of Coach Hewson's high school stars and with Fordham Charlie Hickey filling in at the shortfield berth, the Addison Tri-Cos snapped out of their lethary last Sunday afternoon at Tuscarora Field and smote the league-leading Corning Glass Works nine 1 to 0.

The contest quickly resolved itself into a pitchers' battle between Lefty Flynn and Freddie Coumbe. The Addison High School southpaw faced the strongest hitting team in the league and held them from the plate during the nine long innings. Coumbe pitched a great game for the Glass Works but was compelled to bow to his more youthful opponent. Flynn allowed but six hits, two of them very scratchy.

Maurice Robbins and Hewson pulled the clean hits that won the game together with some clever base running by Hewson. The Addison team was revamped by the addition of two high school players, Lawrence Hickey at first and Matthews at third, as well as the battery, and Charles Hickey at short. He was all over the lot after hard hit grounders and fly balls, accepting nine chances. Hewson and Hickey worked around the keystone sack like old leaguers. Hewson went Charles one better on the number of chances taken care of, having ten. Hewson was also the only Addison man to collect two safe hits. His fast and clever base running was a big deciding factor in the game. The Addison outfield, led by Grange, performed perfectly for the first time this year.

Corning did not take their defeat easily. They have a great hitting team and never give up. They got two men to third base and each time tried the old squeeze play. The first time with Lambert coming in Richards fouled off the ball and the second time Flynn threw out the runner at the plate. The visitors thought they were going places in the ninth. With one down Rotsell doubled inches inside the foul line in right and the next man walked. This brought up the old leaguer Freddie Coumbe, Sr., but Flynn was right there too and struck out Coumbe for the fourth time during the afternoon. Bob Lambert, the fence buster of the league, was next up and his best effort was a pop fly to Hewson to end the game.

Robbins caught a fine game. His reputation for throwing out base runners and his accurate practice throws, so discouraged the visitors that not a man attempted larceny during the afternoon, not even when first and third were occupied. The Corning outfield did some heroic work behind Coumbe, catches by Lambert and Ketchum robbed Addison of several extra base hits.

Addison scored in the first. Hewson singled sharply to right. He stole second standing up and while the Corning battery was thinking this over, stole third. C. Hickey and Grange went down and it was up to Robbins. Maurice worked Coumbe to a count of three and two and then drove a clean single over the third baseman's head sending in the first, last and only run of the game.

The score follows:

Matthews With Mark of .460 Leads Hewson's Heavy Hitters

Robbins, Hickey, Beers, all wield willow at better than .360 clip—Joe Domenick, Gardner, Bob Hallett, also in high brackets—Flynn's imposing box record shows 9 wins, 2 losses.

A team batting average of .323 for the season shows that Coach Hewson's men knew when and where to plant the apple. Combining a clouting average such as this with the type of pitching served up by Lefty Flynn and Johnny Smith and there is little mystery that the Knights finished with a long lead over their opponents in the Steuben County Class "A" League race.

Rolland Matthews, the swatting sorrell-top who raps them out in the good old-fashioned Cameron way, again leads the Hewsonians with the willow. Maurice Robbins, Babe Hickey and Glenn Beers with .383, .372 and .369 respectively, were the others in the charmed circle.

The individual averages follow:

	AB	R	H	Pct.
Matthews	50	13	23	.460
Robbins	47	16	18	.383
Hickey	43	7	16	.372
Beers	46	17	17	.369

The season's record for the Knights show eleven wins as against three losses, as follows:

Banner Enrollment Expected For Boy Scout Camp at Waneta

With the advent of summer and the close of schools, Boy Scouts throughout Steuben Area are turning their attention toward Camp Gorton on Lake Waneta. According to John J. "Cap." Finnessy, camp director, the present indications point to a banner enrollment. Daily, troops are making reservations and many individual applications are being received at the council headquarters in Hornell.

Some confusion has arisen in certain centers, according to Captain Finnessy, over the special troop rate. The rate is $5.00 per week provided eight or more are registered prior to July 1. This fixes the rate for the troop and more may be added at any time. The lower rate will then pertain just so long as eight scouts from the troop remain in camp. Individual scouts may register for any week at the regular rate of $7.00 but the special rate of $5.00 applies only when any troop sends eight or more for any given period or periods. The only requirements for the special rate is that at least eight must be registered prior to July 1.

All Scoutmasters have application blanks and both council offices in the county Court Houses at Hornell and Corning have blanks. Scouts are urged to learn from their Scoutmaster the week selected by their own troop and to enroll without delay. After July 1, the special rate will apply only to those troops that had eight or more signed up for a given period.

Steuben Farmers Study Marketing

Filling to capacity six large buses and a dozen passenger cars, 200 Steuben County farmers journeyed to Buffalo last Wednesday as members of the marketing tour conducted by the farm bureau.

A program which lasted until late in the afternoon, began with the arrival of the party at the offices of the Livestock Producers, the Co-operative marketing organization at the Buffalo Stock Yards, in a two-hour inspection and the Dodd Packing plant, where the party learned the method of handling and selling livestock in the yards and saw the meat processed in the plant.

The longest walk in the world under one roof, which are the alleys in the sheep shed 1500 feet long and 320 feet wide, the immense scales, on which 99 members of the party were weighed in at 14,920 lbs., the vast yards and packing plant, were points of interest in this part of the program.

The Niagara Frontier Fruit and Vegetable Terminal recently constructed, and which is operated by a group of vegetable growers of Western New York, was next visited. Henry Marquardt, president declared the operation to be a success and invited the members of the party who market produce in Buffalo, to use the facilities of the terminal.

Another host of the party was the Buffalo Evening News which entertained with a visit through their plant and newspaper office, and Radio Station WBEN.

Among those from this part of the county making the trip were: Ralph Hand, Leo Oakden, Joseph Kane, A. B. Ackerson, B. Largest Fish Consignment Released

Sixty cans of brown trout, the largest individual consignment ever received here, arrived in Addison last Thursday for distribution in local waters by the Addison Fish and Game Club. The fish, averaging from seven to ten inches long, were received from the fish hatchery at Hammondsport.

Fifteen cans were taken by Llewellyn Robbins and Floyd Gillespie to a point on the Park farm on the Woodhull road where they were liberated in the Tuscarora Creek. Seven cans were released by William McCarthy in the Canisteo River near his farm and five cans were liberated by Hort Crane in the Tuscarora Creek, just below the South Street bridge. An additional five cans were released in the mill dam section of the river, just below the Main Street bridge.

The remaining thirty-five cans were trucked to Sunset Cottage, owned by Harry Fritts, on the Canister River and released at that point.

Units Soon To Make Programs

Local units of the Steuben County Home Bureau have scheduled their program planning meetings for July and early August. Most units call a regular meeting for all members at which Mrs. Lois Mathewson, county agent, is present to explain the subjects to be given in the county. From this county list the local members choose as many subjects as they will have time to take. The county program is made up at Spring Council when representatives from all units have an opportunity to express their requests for help in all homemaking subjects.

At the program planning meetings announcement will be made of the housing tour to be held during the summer. This will be an organized trip to a number of homes in the county to show what has been done in rearranging of living rooms and choice and making of small living room accessories and curtains.

IS IT LUCK OR —KNOWING HOW?

Manager John O'Keefe's Addison Tri-Cos will journey to Morris Run next Sunday, June 30, to lock horns with the fast traveling aggregation from that community. Cards and Wild-Cats Will Tangle Sunday

The Woodhull Cardinals will oppose the fast-traveling Freeman Wildcats on the Woodhull diamond Sunday afternoon. Both teams are coasting along near the crest of the Little Six League and the outcome of Sunday's clash will go a long way toward determining the final winner of the league race. Flynn, Robbins, Beers and Matthews Are Picked For Honorary Berths On Advertiser's Mythical High Nine

Robbins, scrappy Addison backstop, gains captaincy through headwork and aggressiveness — Effective work in tight games gives Flynn priority over all other hurlers — Beers tops league base runners—Matthew's hitting power gives him call at second—Hart and Hickey tip the balance at initial sack.

(By Maynard Allen)

In our selection of an all-county baseball nine it seems that all positions with the exception of first and center field has but one outstanding player. As we figure it Addison county championship team has four regulars and one substitute. Hornell is given three positions and a substitute. Northside gains two men and the Academy with one regular and a substitute, complete the team.

Flynn, star pitcher of the Addison team, ranks first choice as the best man to serve them to the batters. His effectiveness in tight games has helped him to win 7 out of 9 league starts. Regardless of the score, whether it was in his or the opponent's favor, "Lefty" uses his head as well as his arm to send the hitters back to the bench. This trait is especially effective with men on the sacks.

Flansburg of Hornell, as an understudy, is almost as good a pitcher as Flynn. His main fault is his lack of poise with men on. If he can correct this he will be a tough boy to beat.

As catcher and captain of the team Robbins, scrappy Addison backstop, gets our vote. The Addison lad is one of the headiest players on the team and a hitter to be feared. His arm to second cannot be surpassed by any catcher in Steuben County high school or semi-pro leagues.

Hart of C. F. A. wins over Hickey of Addison after a close fight as the guardian of the initial sack. Hart's experience and his remarkable arm gave him his victory. Although Hickey will out-hit him, his hitting from the left side of the plate puts two lefthanded hitters on the team.

Matthews, second baseman of the Knights, takes his position because of his batting average which reads 460 and 465 for the past two years. Matthews plays heads-up ball and has a wicked arm. He is occasionally used as a relief pitcher. Double plays are his specialty and he has collaborated a goodly number of these twin-killings during the past two years.

At short, we place one of the best fielding and fastest infielders to be seen in these parts for many a year, Cheski of Hornell. This boy bats clean-up for Hornell and is considerable of a base robber, once on first. His arm is so good it has got Hornell out of many tight spots both at short and from the mound.

Third is often called the hot corner and requires a player with a wicked peg and plenty of pep to hold it down. Beers of Addison is just the man for the job. He is the best base runner in the county and one of the most dangerous hitters in the league. His spirit to win has caused many opponents plenty of worry.

Left field is covered by Rohenbroad, the left handed hitter who leads Hornell's batting list. He is without doubt the best outfielder in the league.

In center field, Adriance of N. H. S. is seen instead of Spitulnik of Hornell because of his superior hitting. Both are wonderful outfielders.

Johnnie Iverson, N. H. S. relief hurler, will be in right field. The most dangerous and heaviest hitter in the Steuben County League is a title Johnnie is entitled to.

Freeman Wildcats Riding High, Wide and Handsome

Jungle beasts continue their terrorizing sweep by clawing Jasper Aces—Cliff Enderle accounts for triple, double, two singles—Glen Beers in line-up—Oakden tops Cobb on slab.

The Jasper Aces made it five out of five league games when they dropped an 8-3 decision to Freeman on the latter's diamond Sunday. Each team acquired a score in the opening frame. During the next four stanzas, no players crossed the plate, although each team advanced runners to third. Ty Cobb and Buck Oakden worked in a fine pitchers' duel until the sixth when the fireworks commenced. Jasper scored one on a triple by Dempsey and a bunt by Cobb. Freeman promptly turned the tables when they scored three on two walks and two hits. Again in the seventh they made the most of two walks, two errors and two hits for four runs. A walk and a hit in the eighth scored Jasper's last run. Moore relieved Cobb on the mound at the opening of the eighth and held the enemy in check for the remainder of the game.

Cliff Enderle was top notch man of the day with a triple, a double and two singles in four trips to the plate. K. Woodward resumed his slugging ways with a brace of doubles in four tries.

Western Pictures Due For Come - Back Claims Tim McCoy

Colonel Tim McCoy, who attained his greatest popularity on the screen in the rugged, outdoor, hard riding type of story, predicts the swift return of of the western picture to its former high estate in motion picture entertainment. To back this conviction, McCoy will make a series of eight real authentic stories of the plains this year. He has completed one, "The Prescott Kid", which comes to the Avon Theatre Friday and Saturday, January 28 and 29.

"Motion pictures, likes clothes and customs, follow popular tastes" says McCoy. "Last season I made a variety of action pictures including everything from telephone linemen to firemen. I never went near a pair of chaps or a six-gun although, I confess, I often craved to. The reason for this change was that the theatres had been given too many westerns."
